1. Watch the music video “Put Down Your Phone” and complete the lyrics with what you’ve heard.

What will you be missing? A video of strangers kissing
Or another list of places that everyone must see
You'll feel so free and happy
No Candy Crush¹ or Flappy Bird² will ever screw your life up
You can hopefully just be
And it's such a 1) shame to get run over as you cross the street
Just to take that perfect selfie or read your own latest tweet
Put down your phone, there's a world flying by There's a million wondrous 2) wonders if you'd only shut your iPhone
Put down your phone and just walk away
There's nothing BuzzFeed³ can do for you today

1 Candy Crush: a mobile game involving matching colored sweets

2 Flappy Bird: a mobile game where the player controls a bird, attempting to fly between columns of green pipes without hitting them

3 Buzzfeed: an American Internet media, news and entertainment company based in New York City

Those who were in 3) existence when the world was run on pistons (活塞)

Scratch their heads and sit while lit up by the 4) glow of their screens

Is it really that important to keep up with James Corden⁴

To the point your wife has left you and your friends are all machines?

You're 5) addicted to your tablets, so stop feeding your desire

Get your phone, your pad and phablet (平板手机), and then start a 6) massive fire

4 James Corden: an English actor, comedian, singer, writer, producer, and television host

Burn down your phone, run around in a field
Look at some moss, 7) debate the possibility our fate's not sealed Destroy your phone, 8) smash it up with your fist
It won't be missed, it's just a phone — put down your phone
Put down your phone with a gun or by injection
Don't think that they have made an App called I-Resurrection
Put down your phone and send it to 9) sleep
Pick up a book and read it and 10) weep
Have faith in life, don't let it dwindle

Oh I'm so sorry, I've just seen it's a Kindle⁵.

5 Kindle: a small hand-held electronic device for reading books, which has been developed by online retailer Amazon

2. Work in groups and discuss the following questions:

What do you think is the key message conveyed by the song?
Do you feel a need to put down your phone and focus more on people and things in the real world?

How long could you survive without the internet? Days, weeks, months? Ryan Holmes tried it for a fortnight (两周) and came up with some interesting conclusions (结论).

🔊 14 Days with (Almost) No Internet: Did My Digital Detox Pay Off?

Ryan Holmes

- 1 Last year, Paul Miller made waves online when he published his article detailing a unique personal experiment: going one full year with absolutely no internet.
- 2 Of course, at the time, what we all wanted to know was what amazing discoveries Miller had made from his 365 days offline.
- 3 As it turns out, despite a promising first few months of the experiment (during which he lost weight, took time to smell the flowers and wrote a lot of stuff), what Miller discovered in the end was that the very technology he'd begun to criticize actually had very little, if anything, to do with his life's problems. In fact, Miller realized that without the net he had started becoming even more "out of touch with life."
- 4 Last month, I went on my own digital detox. It was only two weeks, but it was the longest I've gone offline in 13 years.

5 Why did I do it? Throughout the last decade, I've been plugged in 24-7, living in a world where the line between digital and real gets a bit blurred at times. For a while I'd felt the urge to free myself from it all, and wanted to see what would happen then.

6 I haven't of course forgotten that I'm CEO of a social media company. My life's work is built around the belief that being connected makes our lives richer and more rewarding. Still, I'd forgotten one key lesson along the way: moderation. As more and more of my life was spent scanning social feeds, I realized that I needed to step back and get some perspective.

7 So on my winter vacation to Mexico, I took a break from being active on the internet for the entire trip. For a whole 14 days, I ate a lot of delicious seafood, surfed and fixed up my hut on the beach. I didn't go online except to check my email periodically — just to make sure an emergency wasn't unfolding while I was away.

8 What I learned from my short experiment was actually not too unlike what Miller learned. I didn't end up discovering that technology is evil. In fact, I found myself reflecting on how living and breathing tech has let me experience some of the most rewarding moments of my life: I've seen world events unfold before my eyes over social networks; I've seen people using new technologies to stay in touch with their loved ones. I've also seen businesses finding new and innovative methods to connect with their clients through channels like LinkedIn.

9 The irony is that by stepping away from all things digital for a while, I actually felt even more appreciative of it. After all, technology is a part of me now and it's how I interact with many of the most important people in my life; it's also made me who I am both professionally and personally.

 T 10 I learned a few other lessons from my short digital detox, which — as I dive back into my connected reality — I'll make sure to remember:

 T 11 Snacking is fun, but it shouldn't replace full meals. With the digital explosion has come an excess of cheap, easy, and addictive pieces of online content for us to readily snack on. No wonder it's so easy to fall into the habit of spending hours online mindlessly moving from one tasty snack to another. The funny thing is that I found I didn't miss this kind of online snacking at all during my 14 days offline. In fact, what I started to crave in the absence of snacky content was longer, thoughtful articles and good books, reading that nourishes my mind.

🔊 T 12 Numerous studies have proven that such reading can improve brain function; some have even suggested it can make you a better person. So instead of funny cat pictures, dive into some of the great “long reads” that show up on your screen — stuff that actually changes how you look at the world. Better yet, pick up a novel or read a book about a topic that can benefit you in some way, whether it’s related to your job or your passions.

1. Text Organization

Pair work: Centering on the author's digital detox experience, the text consists of three parts — why, what happened, and what has been learned. Now write down the main idea in each part and compare notes with your partner.

大学资料都在公众号：三号教学楼

The author's digital detox experience

Motivation (Why?) Experience (What happened?) Discoveries (What has he learned?)

Paras.1-3: Paul Miller's personal experiment of going offline one full year and his discoveries prompted the author to try a digital detox himself.

Paras.5-6: As CEO of a social media company whose life has been spent mostly online, he wanted to step back and get some perspective.

Paras.4&7: The author spent two weeks in digital detox on his winter vacation to Mexico.

Paras.8-9: The author didn't find that technology is evil. Rather, he felt that he liked it even more.

Paras.10-12: He realized that addictive bits of online content should not replace thoughtful articles and good books and it's reading that nourishes the mind.

2. Comprehension Check

Pair work: With the teacher as guide, you and your partner work on the following comprehension check exercises.

2.1 Focusing on the main ideas

Complete the following paragraph with key information from the text.

Inspired by Paul Miller's personal experiment of going one year with absolutely no internet, the writer went on his own short digital detox. He did it because having been plugged in 24-7 for a decade, he wanted to see what would happen if he went offline for a while. So during his winter vacation to Mexico, he didn't go online except to check his email. As a result, he discovered that technology is no evil and technology is already a(n) part of him now. Nevertheless, he also came to the conclusion that it is the reading of thoughtful articles and good books, not snacky online content, that nourishes the mind.

2.2 Digging into detail

Answer the following questions to better understand the text. You may want to write down some key words in the space provided before you do so.

🔑 (Para. 3) 1 What did Miller discover after his unique personal experience of going offline one full year?

Miller discovered that actually technology had very little to do with his life's problems, and that without the net he had started becoming more out of touch with life.

🔑 (Para. 5) 2 Why did the writer decide to go on a digital detox?

Because for the last decade, the writer has been online all day long, and he wanted to free himself from the digital reality for a while.

🔑 (Para. 7) 3 What did he do when he took a break from being active on the internet during the vacation?

He ate a lot of seafood, surfed and fixed up his hut on the beach.

🔑 (Para. 10) 4 What does “my connected reality” refer to?

It refers to the world that is digitally connected.

🔑 (Para. 11) 5 What did the writer long for in the absence of snacky online reading content?

He longed for thoughtful articles and good books, reading that nourishes his mind.

2.3 Understanding difficult sentences

Choose the answer that correctly interprets the sentence from the text.

 1 In fact, Miller realized that without the net he had started becoming even more “out of touch with life.” (Para. 3)

- ☒ A) As a matter of fact, Miller realized that without the internet he had started becoming even more disconnected from life.
- ☐ B) In fact, Miller realized that life had started to become more distant without a network of relationships.

 2 ... I’ve been plugged in 24–7, living in a world where the line between digital and real gets a bit blurred at times. (Para. 5)

- ☐ A) ... I’ve been getting connected all day long, so going online or offline actually makes no difference.
- ☒ B) ... I’ve been getting online round-the-clock, living in a world in which the difference between virtual (虚拟的) and real sometimes becomes unclear.

🔑 3 Still, I'd forgotten one key lesson along the way: moderation. (Para. 6)

- ☐ A) In addition, I'd forgotten one key lesson on my way to the company that I should free myself altogether from the digital reality.
- ☒ B) Nevertheless, I'd forgotten a very important lesson all these years that I should spend only a reasonable amount of time online.

🔑 4 I found myself reflecting on how living and breathing tech has let me experience some of the most rewarding moments of my life. (Para. 8)

- ☒ A) I realized I was thinking about how the time I spent living a completely digital life has provided me with great satisfaction and benefits.
- ☐ B) I discovered I was reflecting on how tech developments have made me hold my breath every day and let me experience some of the most exciting moments of my life.

🔑 5 So instead of funny cat pictures, dive into some of the great “long reads” that show up on your screen. (Para. 12)

- ☒ A) So don't look at funny cat pictures, but spend your time reading some great long articles that show up on your screen.
- ☐ B) So instead of looking at funny cat pictures, learn how to swim by following the detailed instructions that show up on your screen.

The writer of this blog post reflects on his digital detox experience and learns his lesson. It is a well-crafted article as far as writing techniques are concerned.

Three of the techniques the writer uses are the same ones discussed in previous units. The first is the use of an anecdotal introduction. The first three paragraphs about tech writer Paul Miller's story serve as a point of departure for rolling out the writer's discussion about digital life and aim to engage his readers for that matter. The second technique is the use of first-person and second-person pronouns (I, we, you) for making the writing less formal and more interactive.

The third technique is the use of comparing and contrasting for developing an argument and helping readers to think. From Paras. 1–9, the writer compares and contrasts Paul Miller’s digital detox experience with his own. Despite the differences, both show the important role staying connected online plays in one’s life. In Paras. 11–12, the writer uses this technique again to compare and contrast online snacky content, online long reads and a novel or a good book. Such an analysis enables readers to understand what mind-nourishing reading truly is.

A close look at the rhetorical devices the writer uses can further help to enrich one’s reading experience. These devices breathe life into this text, making it more interesting, humorous, lively and ultimately, more effective in conveying the message to readers.

1. Metaphor

A metaphor makes a comparison for similarities between two unlike things without using “like” or “as”. Examples are: detox (in the title); smell the flowers (Para. 3); live and breathe tech (Para. 8); digital explosion (Para. 11); nourish my mind (Para. 11).

2. Hyperbole

A hyperbole is based on exaggeration and not intended to be taken literally. Examples are: have been plugged in 24-7 (Para. 5); live and breathe tech (Para. 8).

3. Analogy

An analogy is a comparison between two unlike things for a similar or parallel relationship. A case in point here is the comparison between snacking/having full meals and mindless online reading/serious reading (Para. 11 & Para. 12).

4. Alliteration

Alliteration is the repetition of the same initial consonant sound in two or more neighboring words. Examples are: richer and more rewarding (Para. 6); professionally and personally (Para. 9).

- 1 High tech is a double-edged sword. One man's meat is another man's poison. (甲之蜜糖，乙之砒霜。) In what extent do you think that the internet has changed your life? In a positive or a negative way? What will it change in the future? You can take some examples to support your idea.
- 2 There was an experiment on this issue. Volunteers were asked to spend three days in an isolated room — no TV, no computer, no phone. All living necessities were provided, and volunteers could also take three things with them except any device that could contact the outside world. They were like “modern Robinsons”. The experiment found that people reacted differently in offline space. If you were a volunteer of this experiment, can you stay in the isolated room for three days? What three things would you take with you? How would you spend your time there?

Double negative (双重否定)

A double negative is a grammatical construction (结构) occurring when two negatives are used in the same sentence, like not uncommon, not an unusual sight (Text, Unit 2), etc. In standard English, two negatives are understood to produce a weakened affirmative (肯定语). Thus not uncommon means rather common and not an unusual sight means quite a usual sight. Similarly, the sentence in the text What I learned from my short experiment was actually not too unlike what Miller learned (Para. 8) is also a case of double negative, meaning What I learned from my short experiment was actually quite like what Miller learned.

Pick a word from the box below and complete the sentences with a double negative construction.

unattractive unrealistic uninteresting unrelated unusual

- 1 There are no uninteresting things, only uninterested people.
- 2 His poor health is not unrelated to his unhealthy way of life.
- 3 Happiness is not an unrealistic goal. It is a matter of choice.
You can choose to be happy.
- 4 You're actually not alone, and what's happened to you is not unusual.
- 5 Believe it or not, most women do not look unattractive in business suits, although their movement seems a little bit restricted (限制).

Complete each of the following sentences in English according to the Chinese given. Use a sentence pattern from one of the boxes below.

Fourteen days with almost no internet for sure pays off as far as Ryan Holmes is concerned. In the two articles that follow, Reading 1 depicts a mixed feeling of love and hatred toward the smartphone and the balance the writer aims to strike. Reading 2 explores the effectiveness of one little gadget that promises to ease us off addiction to our phones.

Reading 1

🔊 My Smartphone: A Letter of Hate, Love and Balance

Cat Greenleaf

Dear Smartphone,

🔊 T 1 I am so tired of the way you dominate my thoughts and actions like an undeserving crush. You're a thief. You steal my time from my family, my thoughts from the actual world and you take my concentration away during, well, everything. Because of you and your stupid unopened message reminders, I can no longer sit through a show, maintain an uninterrupted conversation or truly be fully present anywhere since I need to feel oh-so-important based on how many emails have arrived within the last three minutes. So hey, to hell with you.

🔊 T 2 (1) But on the other hand, I'm writing this complaint from a lounge chair in the mountains, watching the fireflies show off while my dogs snore at my feet. Because of you, I can simultaneously attend an impromptu party thrown by my 5-year-old and a long standing weekly conference call with my boss. I won't bore you, Smartphone, with the deep, intricate sense of guilt that comes with trying to be a professional and a parent all in the same moment (I'm sure there's an app for that anyway), but the truth is, I should probably be thanking you. You allow me so much more time with my sons than my parents had with me. You practically let me lead two lives at once — it's not without challenges, but it's worth it. (2) Instead of yelling at you, I should be marveling at the fact that, because you remember everything, I don't have to crowd my brain with things like contact numbers and birthdays. I can turn my thoughts to more delicious things.

🔊 T 3 Because of you, Smartphone, I can know what's going on around the world, donate to charity, check the weather and call my mom all within 10 minutes. Then while I spend the next 50 minutes with my sons, I can capture life's brief sweetnesses to relive with my husband when he gets home or send to friends across the globe in an instant, showing off how awesome my kids are (because that's not annoying at all).

🔊 T 4 So it actually isn't you. It is totally me. (3) No should mean no, I should turn you off when I walk in the door, and I should stop basing my sense of self worth on how much you're blowing up. I've got to re-engage in the world instead of secretly feeling engaged to you.

🔊 T 5 So let's strike a deal: You keep doing the great job you do; remind me of appointments, obligations and meetings, keep me up to date on my favorite bands, connect me to the world when I want to be, and then if you love me, let me go. (4) For my part, I will look up. I will take notice. I will stop. I'm going to breathe, savor, touch, feel and live without you for several stretches a day. If I love me, I will let you go.

  6 Our relationship used to be a give and take. But from now on, this relationship is a one-way street. I own you for all the great things you can bring my life, but you don't own me in return. Smartphone, you are now my servant. Welcome.

Decide whether the following statements are true (T) or false (F), based on the article.

F

1 The writer's smartphone has dominated her thoughts and actions and she is grateful about it.

F

2 The writer finds it easy to sit through a show uninterrupted by her smartphone.

F

3 While attending a weekly conference call with her boss, the writer wrote this letter of complaint.

T

4 The writer feels a sense of guilt for trying to be a professional and a parent at the same time.

5 The writer's smartphone practically lets her lead her professional life and personal life simultaneously.

- T 6 With her smartphone, the writer can capture the sweet moments she spends with her sons.
- F 7 The writer believes that it is almost impossible for her smartphone to let her go.
- T 8 Instead of being dominated by the smartphone, the writer believes that she should be the boss to make decisions.
- F 9 The writer hopes that her smartphone will get away from her life once and for all (彻底地).
- F 10 The writer holds that her relationship with her smartphone should be a give and take, a two-way traffic.

Translate into Chinese the underlined sentences in the article.

 1 But on the other hand, I'm writing this complaint from a lounge chair in the mountains, watching the fireflies show off while my dogs snore at my feet.

不过，话又说回来，在我写下这些抱怨的话语时，我正待在山里，坐在一张安乐椅上，看着萤火虫在眼前飞舞，狗在脚边打着呼噜。

 2 Instead of yelling at you, I should be marveling at the fact that, because you remember everything, I don't have to crowd my brain with things like contact numbers and birthdays.

我不该对你大喊大叫，相反，我应该佩服你的能力：由于你能记住一切，使我不必把诸如电话号码和生日日期等事情塞进脑子里。

🔑 3 No should mean no, I should turn you off when I walk in the door, and I should stop basing my sense of self worth on how much you're blowing up.

不该做的就该不做，进了家门，我就该把你关掉。我不能再把自我价值感系于你有多少次响起之上。

🔑 4 For my part, I will look up. I will take notice. I will stop. I'm going to breathe, savor, touch, feel and live without you for several stretches a day.

- 🔊 T 1 Are you always looking at your mobile phone as you're walking, playing on it as you're studying, and scrolling through social media sites as you're lying in bed?
- 🔊 T 2 Few are as deeply bothered about this obsession as Gen-Zers, but the good news is that many seem to be intent on working out how to overcome it. Online discussion groups are springing up, picking their members' brains on how to tackle the issue. One group claims to have more than 30,000 members, who pledge to cut down their use by logging in each day to record how much use they have made of the phone over the previous 24 hours.

  3 The China Security Perception Report (2021), released by the Internet Development Research Institute of Peking University, reveals that half of internet users say they are eager to escape the internet and stay away from mobile phones. That is a very tall order, particularly when one considers how ubiquitous cashless payments are in China.

  4 Just as smokers have been provided with all kinds of tricks, gadgets and remedies over the years to help them kick the habit, those who regard themselves as addicted to their phones are getting in on the act. A cool gadget that seems to have everyone at least talking, if not necessarily acting, is a type of mobile phone isolation box. Users simply put their mobile phone in the box and set a time lock that will prevent them from having access to the phone for a set time. Once the time that was set has expired, a beep sounds, providing immediate relief to those who are painfully going on a digital detox.

  5 Zhang Yucheng, a junior college student in Beijing, is experimenting with the isolation box. This summer, she will be very busy doing an internship, searching for a job, and preparing for the graduate admission exam. With so much to do, if her phone kept warning her that her active daily screen time exceeded 15 hours, it would cast serious doubt over her prospects. “As people are depending heavily on mobile phones, many are realizing they need something that can keep them away from them, and this isolation box is much better and direct than software on phones,” she comments.

  6 However, Zhang admits that because the lock time is set by users, whether they can achieve their goal depends on the individual. A five-hour lockup is too harsh, she says, but at the other end of the spectrum, one of her friends locks the box for just 30 minutes, something that makes Zhang suspect the classmate is cheating herself.

  7 It is, indeed, the individual that matters most, agrees Lin Qiang, another college student. He views the isolation box as nothing more than a “flashy” attempt at a solution. “It is meaningless, and regardless of the effectiveness of the isolation box, you might as well lock yourself up. Self-disciplined people are bound to succeed without such stuff,” he says.

Skim the article above and answer the following questions.

 1 Who are most deeply disturbed by mobile phone addiction?
What symptoms do they display?

Gen-Zers. They are always looking at their mobile phones as they are walking, playing on them as they are studying, and scrolling through social media sites as they are lying in bed.

 2 What does the China Security Perception Report (2021) reveal?

The report reveals that half of the internet users want to escape the internet and stay away from their mobile phones.

 3 What is the cool gadget that promises to free mobile phone users from their addiction?

It is a type of mobile phone isolation box. Users simply put their mobile phone in it and set a time lock that prevents them from having access to their phone for a set time.

 4 According to Lin Qiang, what matters most when it comes to licking mobile phone addiction?

According to Lin Qiang, the individual matters most. The isolation box is, in his view, simply a meaningless attempt, and self-disciplined people can easily kick off the bad habit without the help of a gadget.

Cultivating Core Values — Balance Between Phone and Life

The smartphones, being a very new invention of humanity, have occupied a place in our lives to be the necessity that we can't live without. Many people prioritize their smartphones over engaging with people they care about and want to spend time with, and some regard their phone as a best friend. The relationship between phone and life should be taken seriously when more accidents or negative effects are starting to show up as a result of overuse of smartphones.

Normally, people are suggested that they should keep a balance between phone and life by limiting the amount of time spent on the phones, or simply putting them down and doing something else. Are you obsessed with smartphone use? What if there are some tricks, gadgets or remedies that might help with your digital detox?

Pair work: Work with your partner to complete the following dialogue, using the words and phrases in brackets. Make changes or additions where necessary.

A: Do you consider yourself a cell phone addict?

B: Well, I'm afraid so. I do spend a lot of time on my phone — when I'm walking, studying, shopping, having a meeting, lying in bed ... I feel I'm not as productive as I used to be, and my real-life relationships seem to be degrading.

A: You ARE deeply bothered about this 1) obsession. When you check your phone again and again, you might not realize the total amount of time you have lost. An analysis of multiple scientific studies found that people's active daily screen time 2) exceeded four hours a day. (exceed, obsession)

B: Oh, that's a sizable chunk of the time! These hours can 3) add up to an alarming amount in one's whole life. I know I have spent too much time 4) scrolling and browsing on my phone, but when I 5) am intent on minimizing it, things get tricky. (add up to, be intent on, scroll)

A: You are not alone. An official report 6) released in 2021 reveals that 50 percent of internet users are eager to escape the internet and 7) stay away from mobile phones. The issues of 8) cutting down the smartphone use and reclaiming the time are 9) springing up. (cut down, spring up, stay away from, release)

B: It's so good to hear you say that. I often tell myself that extra visits to the social media aren't that harmful. You know, it's hard to consider detaching from devices that have become such integral parts of one's life.

A: Yes, it's 10) a tall order. You can do better, though. It comes down to 11) kicking the habit and 12) getting in on the act. (a tall order, get in on, kick the habit)

B: I know some social networks have introduced anti addiction systems, putting up a restriction on the number of hours the users can stay on their platforms. But I never tried them.

A: Then, have you heard of the gadget called “isolation box”? You put your phone in that box, set a time lock which will prevent you from 13) having access to your phone for a set time. It 14) locks up your device and will only release it once the time 15) expires. (expire, have access to, lock up)

B: Oh, sounds cool, but still, I have to 16) cast doubt over its effectiveness. I think it's 17) nothing more than a flashy stuff. The lock time is set by users, so whether they can achieve their goal 18) depends on the individual. (cast doubt over, depend on, nothing more than)

A: Yes, I agree. It is the individual that matters most. The solution is not the box or any other gadget, but the individual. Self-discipline is the driving force behind achieving any goal. So if you want to minimize the time spent on your phone, you'd better train your self-discipline and willpower.

手机能很好地满足现代人多样化交流的愿望。越来越多的中国人现在离不开手机了。我们用手机保持联系并拓宽朋友圈，我们用手机娱乐、购物、查找信息。然而，这种新趋势导致人们在生活中过度依赖手机。

Mobile phones can well satisfy the diverse communication desires of modern people. An increasing number of Chinese people are inseparable from mobile phones. We use mobile phones to keep in touch and broaden our circle of friends; we use them to entertain, shop and look for information. However, this new trend has led people to rely on mobile phones excessively in their lives.

事实上，一些年轻人已经变得十分上瘾，以至于忽略了与家人和朋友面对面的交流。我们应当做手机的主人，而不是它的奴隶，让它为我们所用，改善我们的生活。

In fact, some youngsters have become so addicted to mobile phones that they neglect the face-to-face communication with their family and friends. We should be masters of our mobile phones, not slaves to them, and make them work for us to improve our lives.

- 1 Smartphones can cause conflict between parents and kids. Over 30 per cent of parents in China think their kids use phones too much.
- 2 Smartphone use can be addictive for everyone. Parents can talk about how they've turned off notifications on their phones to help get out of the habit.

- 3 Instead of demonizing technology, talk about the benefits of smartphones: how they help with research for school projects or to stay connected with friends.
- 4 Parents can tell kids that time spent on smartphones could be otherwise spent in a more enjoyable way, like hanging out with friends or taking part in outdoor activities.
- 5 Hold a family meeting to work out time limits and boundaries for smartphone use. Once the rules are made, stick to them, and parents should take the lead in doing so.

Group discussion

Form groups of 4–5 students. The discussion may center round the following questions:

Should students' smartphones be banned in class?
Why or why not?

Each student is expected to bring forth his or her viewpoint, supported by reasons or evidence. While a student is speaking, the other students may take notes and later supplement (补充) or refute (反驳) what the speaker has said. For example,

Student A: I think students' smartphones should be banned because ...

Student B: Yes, I agree with you. There is another reason ...
/No, I don't agree with you. I believe students should be allowed to use smartphones in class because ...

While preparing for the discussion, try to use as many expressions you have learned as possible from the Text, plus Reading 1 and Reading 2.

Group project: Do you own your phone, or does your phone own you? If you've ever been curious or worried that you might be overly dependent on your phone, take the following quiz. Work in groups and share your responses to these questions. Discuss whether you have maintained the phone-life balance, and what might be a better solution if the balance is broken and your life is affected. Each group summarizes your discussion results and gives a report in class.

Phone-life Balance Quiz

- 1 Where do you keep your smartphone while you sleep?
- 2 Where do you keep your smartphone while you study?
- 3 Which activity are you most likely to do while sitting on a train or bus?
- 4 You just left your dorm and realized that you forgot your phone. What do you do?

- 5 How often do you check your phone during the day?
- 6 Do you ever use your phone while you're moving — walking, biking, etc.?
- 7 Your phone buzzes. Do you check it immediately?
- 8 How much do you pay attention to your phone's battery life?
- 9 How long do you think you could go without your phone (without panicking)?
- 10 Would you rather have a conversation with someone through instant-messaging or face-to-face?

Upon completion of this unit, you are expected to:

- have a thorough understanding of the text contextually and linguistically;
- expand your vocabulary about the digital world and learn how to use the key words and expressions in context properly;
- talk about your own life in the virtual world and, if any, your digital detox experience;
- discuss whether smartphones should or should not be banned in class;
- get familiar with the writing of an opinion paragraph in support of or against an argument.

1. In the first picture, a man and a woman are sitting on the couch with their eyes fixed on their smartphones. Instead of talking face-to-face, they are texting each other. In the second picture, a man is sleeping with his cell phone next to his bed. When the phone buzzes, he just can't help checking it lest he should miss something exciting.

2. I would go back home and fetch it, no matter the distance. Otherwise I would panic (惊慌) or feel incomplete.

3. No, I don't. Some information seems to indicate that cell phones may have an adverse (不利的) effect on the brain. If my phone beeped, I probably wouldn't be able to repress (抑制) the desire to get up and check it.

4. Nowadays it's not considered weird (古怪的) at all to check your cell phone when you are having a meal with friends. But I would feel awkward and uncomfortable if anyone is doing that at dinner.

（几乎）没有因特网的14天：我戒数码瘾值得吗？

瑞安·霍姆斯

去年，保罗·米勒在上发表了一篇文章，详述他一整年不上网的独特个人实验历程，一时间在网上引起轩然大波。

（Para.1）

当然，在那时我们都想知道的是：米勒在他365个离线的日子
里究竟有何重大发现。 (Para.2)

大学资料都在公众号：大学资料都在公众号

结果，尽管实验的头几个月颇有起色（那段时间他体重减轻了，放松了身心，还写出了不少文章），最终米勒却发现，其实他原先开始批评的科技与他生活中的问题，如果说有关系的话，也是微乎其微。事实上，米勒发觉离开了因特网他变得更加“与生活脱节”了。

（Para.3）

上个月，我自己开始停止上网。虽然只有短短两周，却是我13年里最长的脱机时间。 (Para.4)

大学资料都在公众号：大学资料

我为何要这样做呢？在过去的十年中，我时时刻刻处于在线状态，生活在一个数码和现实之间边界时常有点模糊不清的世界里。有一段时间，我强烈希望自己从中解脱出来，并想看看那时到底会是怎样。

(Para.5)

当然，我没忘记自己是一家社交媒体公司的首席执行官。我毕生的工作就是基于这一信念：与外界相连会使我们的生活变得更加丰富多彩、更加卓有成效。然而，我一路过来却忘记了一条重要的训诫：适度。随着我把生活越来越多地投注到浏览社交信息，我意识到必须退后一步，做一番审视。（Para.6）

所以，冬季去墨西哥度假时，我给自己放了个假，自始至终尽量不上网。整整14天的假期，我品尝了很多美味海鲜、冲浪、修缮了海边的小屋。除了定期地查收邮件看看我不在公司期间有没有要紧急处理的事外，我从不上网。 (Para.7)

实际上，我从这一短暂实验中得到的感悟与米勒大同小异。我并没有觉得技术是邪恶的。事实上，我发觉正是与科技息息相关的生活让我体验到我生命中一些颇有价值的时刻：通过社交网络，我看到许多国际事件呈现在我的眼前，看到人们运用新技术与挚爱的人保持联络，我还看到企业通过领英这样的渠道找到全新的方法与客户进行联系。

(Para.8)

具有讽刺意味的是，远离数码世界一段时间以后，我反而更加感激它的存在。毕竟，科技已成为我的一部分，是我与生命中最重要的人互动的方式，它还在职业生涯和个人生活方面成就了我的今天。

(Para.9)

短暂的戒除数码瘾还给了我其他一些教训。在我重返与数码连接的现实之际，我得记住它们。 (Para.10)

零食好吃，但是不能代替正餐。随着数码信息的爆炸，人们可以轻易获取过量的廉价、简单、使人上瘾的网上信息。难怪人们很容易形成一种习惯，即在网上连续数小时不用脑子地从一份美味零食吃到另一份美味零食。有趣的是，在我14天的脱机日子里，我一点也不思恋这种网上零食。事实上，没有了这些如同点心零食般的网上信息，我开始渴望那些长篇的、有思想的文章以及好的书籍，那些滋养我心灵的读物。(Para.11)

无数的研究证实阅读能改进大脑功能，有些研究甚至提出它能使人的日趋完善。因此，别去一味浏览那些有趣的猫的图片了，而是要潜心阅读屏幕上那些好的“长篇文章”——那些真正能改变你如何观察世界的文章。更好的做法是，捧起一本小说或阅读一本在某个方面能使你受益的书，无论其主题关乎你的工作，还是你热衷的事情。

(Para.12)

我的智能手机：一封爱恨交加、利弊权衡的信

凯特·格林利夫

亲爱的智能手机：

我很讨厌你支配我的思想和行为，你不配我的迷恋。你是一个窃贼，窃走了我家庭生活的时间、对现实世界的思考以及对任何事物的专注。因为你和你那愚蠢的未读信息提醒，我再也无法看完一场演出、进行一场连续的谈话、或是全身心地做任何事情，因为我需要看三分钟内能收到多少电子邮件才觉得自己是个举足轻重的人物。嗨，见鬼去吧，智能手机。

（Para.1）

不过，话又说回来，在我写下这些抱怨的话语时，我正待在山里，坐在一张安乐椅上，看着萤火虫在眼前飞舞，狗在脚边打着呼噜。因为有你，我可以一边参加我5岁孩子即兴举办的重要派对，一边与老板进行每周一次的例行电话会议。智能手机，我既想当专业人士，同时又想尽家长之责（我确信为此一定有那么一个应用程序），我不想跟你多讲因此而产生的深切而复杂的愧疚之情。事实上，我或许应该感谢你。你让我有时间和儿子们相伴，远比我父母陪我的时间要多。你几乎让我同时拥有两种生活——这并非没有挑战，但却值得。我不该对

你大喊大叫，相反，我应该佩服你的能力：由于你能记住一切，使我不必把诸如电话号码和生日日期等事情塞进脑子里，从而使我得以去思考一些更有趣的事。

(Para.2)

智能手机，因为有你，我可以在10分钟之内知晓世界各地发生的事情、向慈善组织捐款、查看天气预报，并给母亲打电话。接下来，在我陪伴儿子们的50分钟里，我可以捕捉生活中那短暂的甜蜜，等先生回家时与他重温或即刻发给地球另一端的朋友，炫耀一下孩子们有多棒（因为这么做一点也不令人讨厌）。

（Para.3）

因此，错不在你，而完全在我。不该做的就该不做，进了家门，我就该把你关掉。我不能再把自我价值感系于你有多少次响起之上。我得重回现实世界，而不是暗自觉得我已与你结亲。

(Para.4)

所以，让我们做一笔交易。你继续从事你的伟大工作，提醒我有关约会、应尽的义务和会议安排，告知我心爱乐队的最新消息，在我想要的时候，把我与世界连接。然后，如果你爱我，就放我走。而我呢，我会查阅、会留意、会适时而止。一天中的几个时段，我将离你而去，去呼吸、品尝、触摸、感受和生活。如果我爱自己，也会放你走。

（Para.5）

我们的关系曾经是平等交换的关系。但从现在起，这种关系将是单向的。尽管你能给我的生活带来这么多美好的东西，但你得听我使唤，而你不可反过来使唤我。智能手机，你现在是我的仆人，我欢迎你。

拥抱并吻你的凯特

(Para.6)

束之于桎，解放自我

——张磊（音译）

你是否总是边走路边看手机，边学习边玩手机，躺在床上也要刷一刷社交网站？

（Para.1）

大学资料都在公众号：三号教学楼

很少有人像Z世代那样深受手机成瘾之扰，但好消息是他们中的很多人似乎决意找出如何克服它的办法。线上讨论群正不断涌现，大家相互请教如何解决这个问题。某个群声称有三万多名成员，他们承诺每天通过上网打卡以记录前24小时在线时间来减少手机的使用。

(Para.2)

北京大学互联网发展研究中心发布的《中国安全感知报告（2021）》显示，有半数的互联网用户渴望摆脱互联网，远离手机。这是很难办到的事，尤其在中国，手机支付无处不在。

(Para.3)

大学资料都在公众号：大学资料网

正如人们多年来给吸烟者提供各种诀窍、小神器和疗法帮助他们戒掉烟瘾一样，那些自认为手机成瘾的人们也纷纷行动了起来。几乎人人都在谈论，但不一定使用的小神器是一种手机隔离盒。隔离盒的使用者只要把手机放入盒子，再用定时锁将其锁住，这样在一定的时间内他们便无法接触到手机。一旦设置的时间到了，隔离盒就会发出哔哔声，给那些正在痛苦戒掉手机瘾的人们带去即刻的解脱。

(Para.4)

北京一位名叫张宇承的大三学生正在试用这种隔离盒。今年暑假，她将忙于实习、找工作，还要为考研做准备。有这么多事要做，如果手机不断提醒她屏幕使用时间已超过15小时，那她的前景就得打上一个大大的问号了。“随着人们对手机的依赖越来越严重，很多人正意识到他们需要一个能让他们摆脱手机的东西，而这种隔离盒比手机软件更好、更直接。”张宇承评论道。

(Para.5)

然而，张承认由于锁定时间是由使用者自行设定，能否实现目标则取决于使用者自己。她说，锁定时间设为5小时太严苛了，与此相反，她的一位朋友只把手机锁了30分钟，这让张怀疑该同学是在自欺欺人。

(Para.6)

的确，关键在于个人，另一位名叫林强的大学生如是说。他认为隔离盒只是一种解决手机成瘾问题的“华而不实”的尝试罢了。“隔离盒毫无意义，不管它多么有效，你不如把自己锁起来。没有这盒子，自律的人必定还是会成功。”他说。

(Para.7)

努力把我国建设成为网络强国

2014年2月27日

当今世界，信息技术革命日新月异，对国际政治、经济、文化、社会、军事等领域发展产生了深刻影响。信息化和经济全球化相互促进，互联网已经融入社会生活方方面面，深刻改变了人们的生产和生活方式。我国正处在这个大潮之中，受到的影响越来越深。我国互联网和信息化工作取得了显著发展成就，网络走入千家万户，网民数量世界第一，我国已成为网络大国。同时也要看到，我们在自主创新方面还相对落后，区域

P ... I've been getting online round-the-clock, living in a world in which the difference between virtual and real sometimes becomes unclear.

T ……我时时刻刻处于在线状态，生活在一个数码和现实之间边界时常有点模糊不清的世界里。

E 这里用了比喻手法，把“我”比作一个可以插上插头、接通电源的电器。

Still, I'd forgotten one key lesson along the way: moderation.
(Para. 6)

P Nevertheless, I'd forgotten a very important lesson all these years, a lesson which suggests I should spend only a reasonable amount of time online.

T 然而，我一路过来却忘记了一条重要的训诫：适度。

I found myself reflecting on how living and breathing tech has let me experience some of the most rewarding moments of my life ... (Para. 8)

P I was thinking about how immersing myself in (沉浸式) tech has offered me some of the most rewarding moments of my life ...

T 事实上，我发觉正是与科技息息相关的生活让我体验到我生命中一些颇有价值的时刻……

So instead of funny cat pictures, dive into some of the great “long reads” that show up on your screen. (Para. 12)

P So instead of viewing funny cat pictures, spend your time reading some great long articles that show up on your screen.

T 因此，别去一味浏览那些有趣的猫的图片了，而是要潜心阅读屏幕上那些好的“长篇文章”。

... what Miller discovered in the end was that the very technology he'd begun to criticize actually had very little, if anything, to do with his life's problems. (Para. 3)

T ……最终米勒发现，其实他原先开始批评的技术与他生活中的问题，如果说有关系的话，也是微乎其微。

E “very” 用来修饰名词以加强语气。

e.g My mom knows my very thoughts.
妈妈了解我内心的想法。

What I learned from my short experiment was actually not too unlike what Miller learned. (Para. 8)

- T 实际上，我从这一短暂实验中得到的感悟与米勒大同小异。
- E 句中有个Double Negative (双重否定) 的用法，即not unlike。

I've seen world events unfold before my eyes over social networks; I've seen people using new technologies to stay in touch with their loved ones... (Para. 8)

- T 通过社交网络，我看到许多国际事件呈现在我的眼前，看到人们运用新技术与挚爱的人保持联络……
- E 在论证某个观点时，可将其分解成具有一定联系的几个平行的方面来加以论述。显然，这里的几句，都是围绕着 “I found myself reflecting on how living and breathing tech has let me experience some of the most rewarding moments of my life” 这一中心观点而展开的。

Snacking is fun, but it shouldn't replace full meals. (Para. 11)

T 零食好吃，但是不能代替正餐。

E 这里用了暗喻，把可以轻易获取的、廉价、简单、使人上瘾的网上信息比作零食。

With the digital explosion has come an excess of cheap, easy, and addictive pieces of online content for us to readily snack on. (Para. 11)

- T 随着数码信息的爆炸，人们可以轻易获取过量的廉价、简单、使人上瘾的网上信息。
- E 这里也是用了比喻，意思同上。

If you're the parent of a teenager, you probably feel like your kid is on the cell phone, like, all the time. This is a trend that's not going away — more than half of primary school kids in China have their own smartphones, and that number just climbs as kids get older, according to a report released in 2018.

With the pull these pocket-sized computers have, it's not surprising many parents report the amount their kids spend on them to be a source of conflict. A survey shows that over 30 per cent of parents in China think their kids use phones too much.

As parents we tend to be reactive — we see our kids spending a lot of time on their phone and nag them to put it down — but that approach doesn't teach good long-term habits. Here are some better ways to deal with the problem.

Make it a “we” issue

Let's be honest — it's just as hard for parents themselves to put down their phones, and there's a reason for it. The brain on “smartphone” is the same as the brain on cocaine: we get a feeling of excitement every time our screen lights up with a notification. This, in turn, can lead to addiction. That is to say, for parents and kids alike, using smartphones can get so highly addictive that they can hardly refrain from reaching for it every time their phone pings with the arrival of a notification. Parents can talk about how they've turned off their notifications to help break that habit and show their kids how to do the same.

Don't demonize technology

Don't blame smartphones. Instead, talk about their benefits: how they help with research for school projects or to stay in touch with friends. Then, talk about how our smartphone habits can creep into time we could be spending doing other things we enjoy, like hanging out with friends or going in for outdoor activities.

Discuss limits and boundaries

Call a family meeting to come up with a smartphone plan. Work with your kids to choose some appropriate times to use mobile devices — perhaps after homework and chores are completed — and decide how much time per day is acceptable. You should also agree on no-phone zones, like the kitchen table, bedrooms and car.

Once you've set the terms, stick to them. Parents have to be a good role model. Having household rules in place will make everyone more likely to follow good habits.

Five Signs of Smartphone Addiction

Now it's time to give you a rundown of the five signs you're addicted to your smartphone.

Number One, you feel genuinely anxious when you are without your smartphone. Accidentally leaving your phone at home or misplacing it fills you with dread and significant discomfort to the point of panic. If your smartphone feels more like a fifth limb you can't live without, then you have an unhealthy dependence on it.

Number Two, during a face-to-face conversation with someone, you find it hard to maintain focus and concentration of what you're talking about. You lose eye contact all too easily with them as you zone out, and start thinking about checking your emails, Facebook notifications, or seeing if somebody has left you message. Your smartphone seems to leave your mind in a hyperactive and constantly distracted state, and you find yourself reaching for your phone without even thinking about it.

Number Three, you're in a public place with friends or family, but you spend more time playing around on your phone than conversing with them. Perhaps you're at the dinner table and you regularly feel the compulsion to check your phone. Worse still, your friends and family start complaining about how antisocial your behavior has become.

Number Four, you notice that your smartphone is starting to get in the way of your life. You spend an exorbitant amount of time with your head buried in your smartphone screen, and find hours passing by. Your timekeeping suffers and you start showing up late for things when you were once highly punctual. You begin to realize how unreliable you've become.

Technology is wonderful when used in the right ways and to the right degrees, but when it ends up making us busier to the point where we lose touch with what's actually important, then we need to make a change.

Finally Number Five, you feel the need to document everything in your life. With social media and a smartphone camera, it's possible to document almost everything you do in your day-to-day life. But is it really necessary? Maybe you're at a rock concert or some other event, and you find yourself not really watching the event, but merely watching it through your smartphone screen. People seem to do these kinds of things to show off to their friends or work colleagues.

If you find yourself less engaged in your life and more like an observer instead of a participant, then it's time to put the smartphone down. So guys, those were just some of the

of smartphone addiction. These amazing devices should probably come with a health warning in my view — a kind of caution about the potential dangers of overuse. So let me know your thoughts on this issue.

I have 422 friends, yet I'm lonely. I speak to all of them every day, yet none of them really know me.

The problem I have sits in the space between looking into their eyes or at a name on a screen. I took a step back and opened my eyes. I looked around to realize that this media we call social is anything but. When we open our computers, and it's our doors we shut. All this technology we have, it's just an illusion. Community, companionship, a sense of inclusion, yet, when you step away from this device of delusion, you're awakened to see a world of confusion.

A world where we're slaves to the technology we mastered, where information get sold by some rich greedy bastard. A world of self-interest, self-image, self-promotion, where we all share our best bits, but leave out the emotion.

We're at our most happy with an experience we share, but is it the same if no one is there? Be there with your friends and they'll be there too, but no one will be if a group message will do. We edit and exaggerate, crave adulation (奉承). We pretend not to notice the social isolation. We put our words into order until our lives are glistening. We don't even know if anyone is listening. Being alone isn't a problem, let me just emphasize. If you read a book, paint a picture or do some exercise, you're being productive and present, not reserved and recluse. You are being awake and attentive and putting you time to good use. So, when you're in public and you start to feel alone, put your hands behind your heads, step away from the phone. You don't need to stare at your menu or at your contact list, just talk to one another, learn to coexist.

I can't stand to hear the silence of a busy commuter train where no one wants to talk for the fear of looking insane. We are becoming unsocial. It no longer satisfies to engage one another and look into someone's eyes. We are children, who since they were born have watched us living like robots and think it's a norm. It's not very likely you'll make world's greatest dad if you can't entertain a child without using an iPad.

When I was a child, I'd never be home. Be out with my friends on our bikes we'd roam. I'd wear holes in my trainers and graze up my knees. We'll build our own club house high up in the trees. Now the park is so quiet, it gives me a chill. See no children outside, and the swing's hanging still. There's no skipping, not hopscotch, no churching and no steeple. We're a generation of idiots, smart phones and dumb people.

So look up from your phone. Shut down display. Take in your surroundings. Make the most of today. Just one real connection, it's all it can take to show you the difference that being there can make.

Be there in the moment that she gives you the look that you'll remember forever as when love overtook. The time she first holds your hand, or first kisses your lips. The time you first disagree, but still love her to bits. The time you don't have to tell hundreds of what you've just done, because you want to share this moment with just this one. The time you sell your computer so you can buy a ring for the girl of your dreams who is now the real thing. The time you want to start a family, and the moment when you first hold your little girl and get to fall in love again. The time she keeps you up at night and all you want is rest. The time you wipe away the tears as your baby flees the nest. The time your baby girl returns for a boy for you to hold. And the time he calls you granddad and makes you feel real old. The time you've taken all you've made just by giving life attention and how you're glad you didn't waste it by looking down at some invention. The time you hold your wife's hand, sit down beside her bed. You tell her that you love her, place a kiss upon her head. She then whispers to you quietly as her heart gives a final beat that she's lucky she got stopped by that lost boy in the street.

But none of these times ever happened. You never had any of this. When you are too busy looking down, you don't see the chances you miss.

So look up from your phone. Shut down those displays. We have a finite of existence, a set number of days. Don't waste your life getting caught in the net. As when the end comes, nothing's worse than regret. I'm guilty too of being part of this machine, this digital world, we are heard but not seen, where we type as we talk, and we read as we chat, where we spend hours together without making eye contact. Just don't give in to a life where you follow the hype. Give people your love. Don't give them your like. Disconnect from the need to be heard and defined. Go out into the world. Leave distractions behind.

Look up from your phone. Shut down that display. Stop watching this video. Live life the real way.

Model paper for your reference

For my part, I am all in favour of a digital-free vacation. In the absence of digital devices, there would be no distractions: no short messages, no constantly checking on what stuff my friends were posting on Weibo or WeChat, no ending up reading my emails all the time. I am sure it would pay off. For I would be able to focus all my attention on marveling at sights, observing and thinking. If I wished, I could even at times write down bits and pieces of what I see and think about in the old-fashioned way, with a pen and a notebook. I am sure that when the vacation ended, I would have gained all I had hoped for and come back feeling an altogether happier person.

*Tips for your reference1. Choose your standpoint.

This is an argumentation. You'd better choose only one opinion: Are you in support of/against a digital-free vacation?

2. Arrange the structure and then write an outline.

2.1 Begin with a strong topic sentence: approving or rejecting
(e.g. For my part, I strongly support a digital-free vacation ...)
(e.g. Without digital devices, I have more time to read good books rather than refresh my Wechat over and over again ...)

2.3 Examples to further support your idea
(e.g. I can read not only major-related books to promote my professional knowledge, but also books in other fields to expand my horizon ...)

3. Check for spelling mistakes and grammar errors.

When you finish, check the whole paragraph, especially in terms of spelling, tense, sentence structure, word class, punctuation ...
